TWO MARTYRS.

You have heard of my grief, and to comfort me
With pitying love you bring
The dear face of a friend that I loved to see
In happier days: but sing
No more of the past, I would have you mark
It is gone with its "tender grace,"
My life as the sea in a storm grown dark,
And as pale as its foam my face.

I can speak to you now and your eyes may fill
With tears, when my own were dry,
For the storm of my sorrow is past, and still
Its bitterest waters lie.
Its bitterest waters, too still and deep
To be stirred by a living breath,
Or wakened to-day from their deathly sleep,
By the terrible tale of death.

You remember the "Martyr" we brought from Spain
Resembled the boy, we said,
And we gazed, with a feeling almost of pain
Through tears, at the curl-wreathed head;
But little we thought of how like to this
His farewell to the earth would be:
How nearly allied was the soul to his
That accomplished that victory.

He had hung it where early and golden fell
The light of the sun at morn,
And the voice of the sister he loved so well
From thence on the night was borne.
Through a window, that opened from floor to eaves,
He had seen her, my frightened dove,
And the desolate heart he has left believes
That his bravery matched his love.

For the flames had enshrouded the walls, the roof,
And reddened the clouds afar,
When he lowered the child, as my eyes had proof,
Untouched by a brand or scar.
And then without hope for his failing strength,
When I shouted aloud his name,
He moved to the window and stood at length
In its empty and blackened frame.

With a look to the Heavens, so full of prayer
That it strengthened my heart to pray—
(Could I see him look hopeful, and yet despair
Look steady, yet turn away?)—
To the Heavens above, to the flames beneath,
And then to my deathly face,
With his beautiful head and its golden wreath,
Drawn clear in the open space.

You may think it strange, and it seemeth so
At times to my own poor thought,
But it bringeth a peace to my heart to know
That he died in the self same spot:
Where calm and untroubled, that look replied
Like a voice to my anguished cry,
His face and expression identified
With the face on the wall near by.

Let Working Men Read and Reflect.

The Way the People are Swindled.

A CASE IN POINT—THE BOND AUTOCRAT AND THE POOR WIDOW.

We ask any fair-minded, candid, unprejudiced man, Democrat or Republican, if the following does not present the true state of the case.

Fellow citizens, read, ponder and act:

The bond autocrat returns again and again semi-annually to the Safe Deposit, where his securities are stored, and cuts off his coupons, and forthwith he wends his way to Wall street and receives his gold interest for them from the Assistant Treasurer, or else he sells them to a broker and gets an enhanced amount in greenbacks. These half-yearly financial transactions are viewed by him with great satisfaction. His thoughts do not recur to the source from whence this gold interest comes. Little does he care whether it is derived from the income of the wealthy and well-to-do portion of the community, or wrung from the hard earnings of the laboring people. His interest he must have, and that in gold—it is nothing to him who is made the poorer by it. The principal he has "salted down," as the old saying is, and woe to the man or the party who would say aught against having it redeemed in gold when it matured. He had not bought it with gold, but what of that, gold he must have when it is redeemed. Like the professional Lombard behind the three gilt balls, there must be a usurious "handover" ere the pledge is given up.

First of May, the great calender day for landlords, is again on its annual return to New Yorkers. Clad in its habiliments of spring, and bright as it may appear to the young and the unthinking, it is far from such to many of the denizens of the metropolis. As the sun rose on this beautiful morning, and the early spring of mankind thought of the pleasures that it brought, they were much given to joyous gratifications. But how sad with thoughtful care, foreboding the duties and requirements of the day, did many of their elders appear. There was the expectation of a visit from some one, and it was dreaded. Why? Because many were unprepared to receive him, and none more so than Widow Allen, for with all the husbanding of her means she was not prepared for the visit of her landlord. She heartily wished for the delay of his coming. "Could he not put it off? No, it was May morning, he will surely come," said she to herself.

Yes, ere the clock struck twelve appeared the dreaded visitor, Mr. Slocum, for his rent.

"How do you do, Mrs. Allen?" queried Mr. S., while, unsolicited, he took a chair.

"Not very well; cares and troubles are weighing me down. I feel as if I could not stand them much longer," responded the widow.

With this reply the unwelcome visitor thought it proper to enter at once upon the business that brought him and cut off the listening to all further complaints.

"Have you the rent ready!" he asked in measured accents, and with a distinct emphasis upon the word "ready."

"No, bless your soul, I am not ready, for I have not been able to lay by much to make up the amount."

This was rather undesirable news to S., for he was then searching in his pocket-book for the receipt which he had prepared beforehand.

"Have you not received the half-yearly interest on the bond and mortgage you hold on the house on Greenwich street?" demanded he.

"Yes, but it is nearly gone."

"This is not right; you should have thought of me, or more properly, of your rent. I must have it."

"I have. But you must know I have children who need food and clothing. They have no father and I no husband now to provide. What little he has left me, much as it appears in the opinion of some, does not go far."

"How much does that money invested on the bond and mortgage amount to, which he willed to you?"

"Six thousand dollars."

"Let us see, six thousand dollars. By-the-by, how far back does the bond and mortgage date, and what interest does it pay?"

"It is dated July 1st, 1860, and pays six per cent."

"Well, then, you received one hundred and eighty dollars on the first of last January; or, rather, on the second, as half yearly interest. The quarter's rent amounts to eighty-seven dollars and a half. You should have kept enough out of that interest to pay it."

"I paid you one quarter's rent on the first of February out of it, and it left me only ninety-two and a half dollars, and out of this I have been able to save only thirty-five dollars for this quarter. The winter has been so hard. The sewing I used to have from the store was stopped a good part of the time; so you see I have had very little work, and scanty meals my children and myself have had. As to clothing, that was not to be thought of. Take these thirty-five dollars and I will try and let you have the balance as soon as possible."

The widow's pitiful recital had very evidently made no impression upon him, for in his responsive remarks he did not hesitate to inform her, in not an overbland manner:

"I cannot help it; I must have the rent. If you cannot pay it, I must let the apartments to somebody that will. There is another party ready to take it."

Taken aback by this unfeeling remark, the widow, although sorely affected, looked him sternly in the face, and said:

"Mr. Slocum, you and I are not strangers. You worked for my husband before his death. You drove a cart for him. He was kind to you, and assisted you and your family. Like many others, he considered it patriotic to go to the war which your party stirred up, and he was killed. Left a widow with three little children and not much of this world's goods, for my husband's lucrative business dwindled down to nothing after he had joined the army, with nobody behind to take care of it. I was consequently obliged to move from the house we had occupied when he was alive. I took these rooms. Mr. Anderson (good man!) the former landlord, he, too, is gone, and you have come into possession of the house. You were poor at the commencement of the war. It is a mystery to me how you got along so well—so rich suddenly."

These brief comments on his former days, by the widow, stirred up the ire of Slocum, for he here stopped her short with a sharp rejoinder, that "it was none of her business how he had made his money."

"You make it my business to look into your's when you pry into mine. I have been told that you had contracts during the war, and laid in a good supply of Government bonds."

"What is that to you how I made my money and what amount of bonds I hold? I bought them when gold was at a high premium. It is my gain, and not yours."

"Well said that it is not my gain—I am fully aware of that. Moreover, neither the people nor the Goverment have gained by it. I am not such an ignorant woman as you take me to be, and not more so than you are, with all your money. You said that I got one hundred and eighty dollars last January, as six months interest on my bond and mortgage. How much did you get on six thousand dollars of your Goverment bonds, the sum total of my bond and mortgage? Gold on the first of last January was 133, so you got two hundred and thirty-nine dollars and forty cents in greenbacks for your gold paying six per cent. coupons, as six months interest, and I but one hundred and eighty dollars as a half year interest on my six thousand dollar bond and mortgage. On this bond and mortgage, as personal property, I had to pay one hundred and sixty dollars and twenty cents last November as City, County and State taxes; and you nothing. Your bonds are exempt: they are clear of such taxes. Is this right—is it just? Answer, if you can. My husband loaned one hundred cents on the dollar when he procured the bond and mortgage on the house, and you only forty cents on the dollar when you bought you gold paying six per cent. bonds, redeemable in 1881; or, in other words, my husband loaned the man six thousand dollars when he took the bond and mortgage, and you loaned the government but twenty-four hundred dollars when it gave you the six thousand dollar bonds. I receive my interest in greenbacks and you in gold. Is this just, I ask you again? Here is another item of difference I want you to look into. When I moved into this house, before you became its owner, I hired the rooms from Mr. Anderson for one hundred and twenty dollars per year. Now I have to pay you for the same apartments three hundred and fifty dollars. My income from the six thousand dollars has remained stationary at one hundred and eighty half-yearly, ever since my husband left for the army, poor soul, never to return. If gold were to go up to two hundred, three hundred, or even four hundred, I would receive the same. And you, the higher the premium on gold the more you will receive for your coupons, and the more rent you'll put on the house."

"Mrs. Allen, you seem to be quite at home on financial matters; you must have rubbed your back against the desk of some Wall street broker," interrupted the landlord.

"Mr. Slocum, it does not take much financial knowledge to understand the difference between interest at six per cent. in gold at premium, and interest at six per cent. in greenbacks. The dullest person will understand when her rent is raised from one hundred and twenty to three hundred and fifty. Here is my oldest child, my daughter; see how she is clothed. The cheapest calico, and much worn at that. How was your daughter dressed when she attended the opening of the Loyal League Club rooms on Madison avenue, the other evening—the club to which you belong? You know of the fineries she had on—her satins, laces and diamonds. I saw her as she got in the carriage to go. Do you imagine that a mother cannot perceive the difference between the circumstances of the two? An artificial standard created by the bonds you hold. When my child was born we were in good circumstances, and that same daughter of yours, so proud and aristocratic now, was then glad to come and eat at our table, and we were kind to her. Has nature brought about this change—created one to live in poverty, or at least in poor circumstances, and the other in idleness and luxury?"

"Woman, I have heard enough of this. If the rent is not forthcoming by noon, out your duds and furniture will go on the sidewalk."

He was as good as his word, for as the clock struck twelve he was there with an officer and men, and the rooms were soon made vacant of the widow's furniture.

The Loyal League Bond Autocrat went his way rejoicing in his power. He thanked his stars that he got rid so easily of such a "Copperhead woman, one who used such treasonable language and declaimed fiercely against one of the supporters of the national honor and the credit of the nation's bonds."

K. K. K.

Mr. "Meshack Horner" thus describes the K. K. K's. as he saw them in the middle of the night in Abingdon, Washington Co., Va., a few weeks since:

"On lookin down from the winder, the fust thing I saw was a great big black flag, with a white skull and two cross bones painted on it. Lookin a leetle lower, I seed a great company of black hosses marchin along silently, two and two, and on each hoss was a pale looking rider, dressed in a long white robe, and each held in his bony fingers a bright two-edged sword, with drops of blood sprinkled about on 'em. As I was lookin strate down on 'em a great big skeleton lookin fellow as big as the giant that David killed, raised his blood-shot eyes rite in my face, and puttin his finger on his lips, he sez, in a whisperin tone, 'these silent riders are the Ku Klux Klan, and I am the head giant.' 'What if you are,' sez I, 'you hav'nt got nothin to do with me.' 'That depends on whether we have or not,' sez he. 'If you're a true man, honest in your dealins, just in your politicks, in favor of your own race, above hunnyfoggling with niggers, divide your bred and meat with the widders and orfants of soldiers, and aint for makin niggers better than white people, and givin 'em land that don't belong to you, you are not the sort of a man we're after; but if you're a Radical or a nigger—and one is about as good as tother, and better too—you'd better keep your eye skinned, or we'll have you, and then you may call upon the Lord to have mercy upon your soul.'

"'Well,' sez I, 'I've heard a heap over in Bear Cove about them Ku Klux-Klans, but I never seed enny before—will you tell me who you are, and where you come from'

"'Yes,' sez he, 'we have no secrets on that pint. We are the sperrets of the Confederate ded, who hev come back to see our livin comrads right—who have jined the niggers agin their own kin and color, to protect all who are sufferin from the meanness and maliciousnes of bad men, both black and white. We started in Tennessee, where we intend to return as soon as we have finished the work we have to do, and punished the bad white men in Virginny.'

"As he finished talkin, they all marched on their hosses along the street, makin no more noises than if they had bin walkin on feather beds, and in a few minutes I went to sleep and saw no more of the awful lookin company.

"Yours til deth, MESHACK HORNER."

[ORIGINAL.]

"Whatever you did to one of these, My least, brethren, you did it to Me."

Compassionate the orphan child,
Whose tender, helpless years,
Bereft of a fond mother's smile,
Are marked with bitter tears;
Whose only hope of earth has fled—
Uncared for she may roam—
Whose joys, her parents, both are dead;
O! find for her a home.

O! pity that poor little one
Whose sorrows know no change—
Whose mis'ry at life's dawn began,
Perhaps through life to range:
Who has no friend to guard her ways,
Or shield her here from ill;
Neglected and forlorn, she strays,
In danger's footprints still.

Behold your own dear little ones,
Whose forms you gladly view:
She was as dear to one that's gone
As these are now to you.
Her silken hair and gentle brow
Were once a mother's pride;
How sadly changed her state is now,
Since her dear parents died.

That orphan boy who strolls about
In dirty, ragged clothes,
Exposed to hunger and to vice,
And every wind that blows;
His, too, is surely a hard fate,
If mercy steps not in,
And snatch him, ere it be too late,
From wretchedness and sin.

O! would that those whom God has blessed
With health and means to live,
Did kindly feel for the distressed,
And aid in season give.
What endless blessings might they gain,
By little well applied,
And not like Dives all retain,
But with God's poor divide.

O! if they thought on that POOR CHILD
Who in the manger wept,
And that lov'd mother POOR and mild,
That o'er Him vigil kept;
And mind that what we give the poor,
He'll view as gave to Him,
They surely would not shut the door,
And let not Jesus in. VERITAS.

THE BASE BALL CLUBS.

A STARTLING DISCLOSURE.

BY JOHN QUILL.

I have a terrible revelation to make. Who would have thought that in this community there is a band of men who are leagued together for the purpose of doing deeds at which angels might well weep, and at the recital of which the hardiest man would shudder, and tear his hair out by the handful? Why, nobody.

But it is so!

Listen!

Upon my return from the South, where I had my interview with the Ku Klux Klan, I was waited upon by my friend, Felix O'Dowd, who made the following statement, which I hasten to give to the public, so that people may prepare to defend their altars and their fires, strike till the last armed foe expires, and keep out of the green graves of their sires, thus saving funeral expenses, and sustaining the healthy reputation of the city.

"Do you know," said Mr. Felix O'Dowd, "what all these Base Ball clubs are for?"

"Why, to amuse young men who have a fondness for working very hard gratuitously, of course," said I.

"Ha, ha!" laughed Felix, wildly, "not so; let me whisper it to you."

"They mean blood!!!"

"I board with the Secretary of the Tom Tit Club, and in the silent watches of night before last, I saw him rise up off of his couch, go to the bureau, read a lot of papers, run his fingers through his hair with a wild and desperate air, draw his razor across his throat three times, sigh deeply and return to bed.

"I examined these papers next day. I tell you these Base Ball clubs are parts of an organization which is sworn to rise up and slaughter every Republican in these United States before next fall, so as to increase the Democratic majority. They are Ku Klux Klanners in another shape. They are going to deluge this land with blood. They intend to begin with the able-bodied men who are liable to the draft, and then take the word politicians. When they are moldering in the grave, they will take all the boys under twenty-one, and slaughter such as have radical proclivities.

"Oh, I tell you the undertaking business will prove profitable next fall. Holders of coffins will become opulent. Don't sell short in cemetery lots if you wouldn't become a beggar. Buy in all the tombstones you can get your hands on."

"Can this be true?" I asked.

"Worse," said O'Dowd, "even worse than this. They will next assault all the orphan asylums, and after leveling them with the ground, and putting the managers to the sword, they will take the fatherless children and educate them as Democrats—Democrats, I say—and teach their childish voices to shout the battle cry of the unterrified."

"Felix, you have been imposed upon. It cannot be that—"

"This Base Ball business is a swindle," said Felix, "a blind, a base-ball deception. They merely go out and profess to play, so as to develop their muscles for the terrible deeds which they are to do. It is all fixed. The organization moves like machinery. Each one has his appointed work. The 'catchers' will go around with a lasso and rope in stray Republicans, then the 'pitchers' will pitch into them. The 'short stop' is to murder his victims quickly, and put a short stop to their misery. The 'long stop' is to torture them on the rack—devilish engines in the shape of hat-racks, which they all have ready in their houses."

"Felix, this is too horrible for——"

"The 'scorers' are to go around and pick out the victims, scoring them on the back, so that the slayers will know them. The arrangement of 'nines' is alone suspicious. Nine has always been a mysterious number. It is determined, also, that each nine is to elope with a feminine. This is modeled on the celebrated action of Romulus in the case of the Sabine women. If you recollect, Rome got up and howled on that occasion. Polygamy is to be allowed when the slaughter is over."

"There must be some mistake here, Felix——"

"'Out on a foul' means to hit men on the head without warning, and launch them into eternity. I know all their secrets. To 'catch on the first bound' means that some men are to be completely tied with the lasso before the crowd rushes out on them. 'Out on a fly' refers to the manner in which those who endeavor to escape by running will be treated. They will be shot dead in their tracks."

"Felix, you must see the Mayor about this instantly."

"A 'home run' is when some frantic Republican rushes to his home and seeks refuge in the bosom of his family. These will be boiled in red-hot oil, and their skeletons sold to Democratic medical schools. 'Match games' are those where bodies of men have barricaded themselves in houses. The buildings will be undermined, the cellars filled with gunpowder, and the whole concern touched off with a slow match,"

"You are certainly the victim of some wild delusion, Felix," I said.

"No, I'm not, I tell you. I know them. Those sticks they call 'bats' will be used to brain thick-headed Republicans with. They are poisoned at one end, and when they sink into your skull you are a goner without doubt."

"O, pshaw! this cannot possibly be, you know."

"And you know those balls which those fellows have, sometimes in cases? Well, they are filled with nitro-glycerine and Greek fire, and they will be thrown into Republican mass meetings. They are warranted to kill six hundred men apiece. I know the man that makes 'em."

"Oh, you are excited; lie down and try to get a nap," said I. "It will soon wear off."

"The spikes in their shoes are intended to stamp on a fellow when a Base Baller gets him down and has to wait for help. The spikes run through him and pin him to the pavement, you understand. That's what they mean by 'innings.' It's 'inning' when they get one of these things jabbeb into your vitals. Haven't you—"

"Felix, my boy, you have been grossly deceived. It can't ——"

"Haven't you noticed those fellows often when they were playing, go to one side and drink something out of a tin cup or a flask? Well, that was BLOOD!—hot blood!! they do it to make them fierce and cruel. They are at work now, all through this town, I tell you. They daren't do anything openly yet, but their infernal work has begun. They operate at night. They don't walk—they flit. Each man has wings. That's what 'bat' means; they fly around and steep their hands in gore. You can often hear their peculiar cry. Every man has a deep voice. When they yell it is a bass bawl. That's what they take their title from."

"Felix, you don't seem well. This can ——"

"You recollect all those railroad accidents that have occurred lately? All those coal oil explosions, and earthquakes, and dog bites, and fires, and cases of bilious fever? Well, that's their work. That's what they're at. I tell you that there won't be a solitary Republican alive in this town on the first of next September. That's so, now. I know, I know that—"

"Felix, this is terrible."

"That they've got grips and pass words, and all that sort of thing, and every time a club goes out of town under the pretense of playing match games, they stop and examine all the railroads preparatory to ripping them up, and cutting the telegraph wires. If you leave home next summer you'll never come back, mark my word,"

And Felix O'Dowd withdrew and left me to meditate upon this fresh horror.

I have asked myself, over and over again, can this thing be? and the answer has always been, yes. It is time this community was alarmed and made to understand its perilous position. By placing these facts before them I have done my duty, and will probably be sacrificed for it by the first base ballist I meet. But I am courageous and self-sacrificing. This thing must be put down, and I am ready to take the consequences of my devotion, and to save my fellow-men at the risk of my life.

N. B.—If any of my fellow-men find their hearts overflowing with gratitude, and wish to get rid of their property before the final catastrophe comes, a line sent to this office will reach me.

BEAUTY AT A DISCOUNT.—A gentleman in Keokuk, Iowa, telegraphed the conductor of a train to know if his wife was on the train. The answer came promptly. "Your wife is on it." The husband scratched his head, pondered, and marveled at the fortitude of American expressions.

Democratic State Ticket.

FOR AUDITOR GENERAL:
HON. CHARLES E. BOYLE,
Of Fayette County.

FOR SURVEYOR GENERAL:
GEN. WELLINGTON H. ENT,
Of Columbia County.

Conservative Soldiers' and Sailors' National Convention,

The Executive Committee appointed by the Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention, held at Cleveland in 1866, have called a National Convention of the Conservative Soldiers and Sailors of the United States, to meet at the city of New York the 4th of July next, to take action on the nomination of Conservative candidates for President and Vice President. As it is desirable that Pennsylvania should be fully represented in said convention, we request our late comrades in arms to take the necessary action to have delegates elected or appointed from every Congressional district in the State. As the time is rapidly approaching when the convention will meet, there should be no delay in the matter.

EDWARD L. DANA, Brigadier General.
WELLINGTON H. ENT, Brevet Major General.
J. B. SWEITZER, late Colonel and Brevet Brigadier General.
JOSEPH H. KNIPE, Major General.
W. W. H. DAVIS, late Colonel and Brevet Brigadier General.
WILLIAM M'CANDLESS, late Colonel.
JOHN P. LINTON, late Colonel.
JOHN S. M'CALMANT, late Colonel.
LEVI MAISH, late Colonel.

SOLDIERS' CONVENTION.

The conservative Soldiers and Sailors of Cambria county are requested to meet in County Convention, at the Court House, in Ebensburg, on Tuesday evening, June 2nd, 1868, to select conferees to meet like conferees from the other counties of this Congressional district, to appoint delegates to the National Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention, to meet at New York, on the 4th of July next, in pursuance of the call of the Executive Committee of the National Soldiers' and Sailors' Convention, which met in Cleveland in 1866.

H. D. WOODRUFF,
Chairman of Soldiers' County Committee.

The Chicago Convention.

The Radical National Convention, which met at Chicago on the 20th instant, after relieving itself of a vast amount of spread eagle patriotism and double distilled loyalty, nominated Gen. GRANT for President and SCHUYLER COLFAX for Vice President. This is what is sometimes called a kangaroo ticket, having its heaviest part behind.

Grant's nomination was, of course, a foregone conclusion—not because he is a man of ability, or that he is gifted with any broad and statesmanlike views on great questions of national policy, but simply on account of his supposed availibility as a military man. That consideration alone, in the estimation of the Radicals, will cover a multitude of political defeats. But in this pleasing delusion they will find themselves fatally deceived. The people of this country will decide the next Presidential election, not from any blind admiration for military glory and renown, but they will determine it with reference to certain broad, well defined principles, and a certain line of policy the adoption of which can alone rescue the country from sure destruction under Radical misrule. The day has gone by in this country when a man can be elevated to the office of President merely because he commanded an army and gained a battle, or any number of battles. There are practical questions—questions of taxation and currency—now stirring and agitating the public mind which will sweep all other issues before them and whose onward progress cannot be arrested by any mere party appeal based on a candidate's military reputation. The old Whig party was boastful and confident of success in 1852, when Gen. Scott and Franklin Pierce were the opposing candidates for the Presidency, and yet that party met with a most humiliating and disastrous defeat. Let the Radical party of 1868, covered all over as it with political infamy and disgrace, prepare for the sentence which the American people will pronounce against it next November.

The Woes of Wade.

The political sourows which have recently gathered around "honest" Ben Wade are calculated to excite for him a feeling of deep commisseration. The Democratic party, at the election in Ohio last fall, having carried a majority of the members of the Legislature, elected Judge Thurman, an able and distinguished member of the party, to succeed Wade in the United States Senate on the 4th of March next. Wade then became a candidate for nomination for Vice President on the Radical ticket, with a fair show of success. When the Rump Congress commenced the impeachment intrigue it was to be consummated by the removal of President Johnson and the transfer of Wade from the Senate to the White House. In that event it was not doubted but that he could dictate his own nomination at Chicago. Wade has always been heartily despised by the moderate and conservative Republican Senators, who regard him as a blatant demagogue and as a dangerous man to be clothed with the powers of a President. Even if the impeachment of the President was just in itself, Wade was the last man in the country, in the judgment of such men as Fessenden and Trumbull, who ought to take Andrew Johnson's place. But impeachment failed on legal grounds and Wade's hopes of taking possession of the White House were suddenly blasted. A tremendous effort was then made by his friends to force his nomination at Chicago as a fitting rebuke to the seven Republican Senators who had voted for the acquittal of the President. But this scheme utterly failed, and the Chicago Convention not only did not nominate Wade for Vice President, but it did not even gratify him by passing a resolution denouncing the seven Senators who voted against impeachment. Surely the woes of no public man have been more cussbing than those of Wade. He was consisetnt in his infamy to the last, and voted to convict the President, and by that vote to put himself in the President's place. The country has been fortunately saved from such a calamity, and after the 4th of March next Benjamin F. Wade will retire to the shades of private life in that intensely loyal region of Ohio, known as the Western Reserve.

Andrew G. Curtin.

The failure of the "War Governor" of Pennsylvania to receive the nomination for Vice President at Chicago must be especially mortifying to him and his friends. The "Boys in Blue" in this State belonging to the Radical party had gone to a great deal of trouble in making political capital for him. They held a State Convention in his interest during the winter in Philadelphia, and formally nominated him for the office. The Republican State Convention afterwards instructed the delegates from this State to support him at Chicago. It was reasonable, therefore, to suppose, from all these demonstrations in his favor, that he would have been quite a formidable candidate. But the vote at Chicago shows that outside of his own State he had no strength whatever, and that he was withdrawn from the list of candidates after the third ballot. His bitter enemy, Simon Cameron, was on the ground at Chicago, to do him all the damage he possibly could, and this may account to some extent at least for Curtin's poverty of votes. But a man who, like Curtin when he was Governor of the State, would promise to do one thing and then would do the very opposite, cannot expect to have many warm and devoted friends. Hence his fall at Chicago, and it may truly be said that great was the fall thereof.

Stevens and Forney as Prophets.

Thaddeus Stevens said in Congress last winter, "If the President is not convicted the Radical candidates will carry but two Northern States—Massachusetts and Vermont" John W. Forney said in one of his letters to The Press, "Should the Senate of the United States fail to convict Andrew Johnson on the accusations of the House, not one electoral vote with the exception of the votes of West Virginia, Missouri and Tennessee will be given to General Grant in the Southern States next November." If these predictions of Stevens and Forney should happen to be verified, it is very certain that whoever may be elected President, his name will not be Grant.

The Negro in the Chicago Convention.

The platform adopted by the Radicals at Chicago, though full of glittering generalities, and, like india rubber, capable of being stretched in almost any conceivable direction, will not commend itself to the people of the United States. Regarding it as of prime importance the Convention announced its position on the negro question in the first two resolutions. The party, and its nominees, Grant and Colfax, are pledged to the maintenance of negro supremacy in the Southern States. This is followed by a declaration in favor of leaving the question of suffrage to be decided by the people of the loyal States for themselves. In few words, the position of the Republican party in the coming Presidential contest is, that Congress shall enforce negro supremacy in the South, while we of the North are not to be thus forcibly dealt with just at present. That the leaders of the Republican party expect very soon to make voters of the negroes in every Northern State, if they succeed in electing Grant, no sensible man can doubt. The truth is that with one-half the Union under negro domination the right to vote and hold office cannot be long denied to that race in any State. The blacks will hold the balance of power, and will dictate their own terms. This the Radical leaders know, and they are perfectly satisfied with the position taken at Chicago. They see that with negro supremacy in the South thus squarely made part of Grant's platform, negro equality in the North must inevitably follow his election. So we hear no grumbling from the extreme men of the party. They are all delighted, and in the confident assurance that the election of General Grant will enable them to break down every barrier between the two races, they go to work with all their energies to secure that result.

That the masses of the North are prepared to support General Grant on such a platform, we do not believe. They cannot fail to understand the true position of the two great political parties in the coming contest; and the white men of our section will not vote to subject their own race in the South to the domination of barbarian negroes, with the assurance that the negro equality in the North must speedily follow.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

SENATOR FESSENDEN VOTED "NOT GUILTY."—Senator Fessenden, in vindicating his vote to acquit the President, sums up the whole case in a few weighty words, which will be remembered in his honor when the story is told of the fate of the party which dared to ask of its adherents flagrant perjury in its interest. He said:

To depose the constitutional chief magistrate of a great nation elected by the people, on grounds so slight, would, in my judgment, be an abuse of the power conferred upon the Senate, which could not be justified to the country or the world. To construe such an act as a high crime or misdemeanor within the meaning of the Constitution would, when the passions of the hour have had time to cool, be looked upon with wonder, if not with derision. Worse than this, it would inflict a wound upon the very structure of our Government, which time would fail to cure.

HIRAM COULDN'T BE SCARED BY A MONKEY.—Ulysses stepped forward, and mounted the pony. The performance began.—Round and round and round the ring went the pony, faster and faster, making the greatest effort to dismount the rider. But Ulysses sat as steady as if he had grown to the pony's back. Presently out came a large monkey and sprang up behind Ulysses. The people set up a great shout of laughter, and on the pony ran; but it all produced no effect on the rider. Then the ring-master made the monkey jump up on to Ulysses's shoulders, standing with his feet upon his shoulders, and with his hands holding on to his hair. At this there was another and a still louder shout, but not a muscle of Ulysses's face moved. There was not a tremor of his nerves. A few more rounds and the ringmaster gave it up; he had come across a boy that the pony and monkey both could not dismount.—From Grant's Early Life, by his Father.

LATE NEWS ITEMS.

—The dead duck in the Chicago collection of curiosities refused to quack.

—Miss Belle Armstrong, of Columbus, Ohio, has made eighty words out of the letters in "oyster," and won five dollars thereby.

—Three important acts passed by Radical "statesmen" are now in the courts, namely, the Registry act, the Deserter act, and the Income tax act.

—In one of the lower counties of the State of Georgia, where the Radicals elected their ticket by a large majority, the whole amount of taxes paid by them was just one dollar and eighty four cents.

—Thad. Stevens, for the last twenty years, has taken half an hour's recreation each evening by betting $50 at faro. So says a eulogist of Thad. in the Chicago Journal, which is a truly loyal paper.

—Somebody asks why Ben Butler is like the dish mentioned in the familiar melody of Mother Goose, beginning with "hey, diddle, diddle, the cat's in the fiddle," &c., and answers it by saying because it "ran away with the spoons."

—Butler says Bingham is a murderer. Bingham says Butler is a coward and a thief. Donnelly says Washburne is a scoundrel and a fool. Washburne says Donnelly is a convict and a liar. Of such is the kingdom of Radicalism.

—Senator Fessenden has received a letter from one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Bench of Massachusetts, saying that his opinion on the impeachment case is sound in law and will be sustained by the Republican members of bar of Boston.

—A brick house was struck by lightning in Toronto last week. The whole side of the house and two chimneys were carried off. The sleepers in one room—a man, woman and infant—were left exposed to a furious storm of rain, and the infant was badly injured.

—The ladies of Barcelona, Spain, have sent a banner to Rome for presentation to the Papal troops. It is made of crimson velvet embroidered with gold, silver and silk. The tiara surmounting the escutcheon of the Holy Father is ornamented with emeralds, rubies and opals.

—The Lancaster Intelligencer states that the condition of ex-President Buchanan's health is very critical. He is still confined to his bed and allowed to see no one; the prostration resulting from his illness is such as to occasion, owing to his advanced age, the gravest apprehensions as to the result.

—Mrs. Atwell, who is now, and has been for a great number of years, a resident of Metcalfe County, Ky., aged eighty odd years, has had her hair undergoing the pleasant transformation from the snowiest white to the richest black, and is now in the possession of a luxuriant growth of rish black hair.

—The expenses of the War Department are now $188,000,000 a year. And Stanton still sticks "like a leech," or, to use another vulgar phrase, "like death to a nigger." We pity the niggers. And we pity the people who have to pay the taxes to keep Stanton in his great character of sticking-plaster.

—On Saturday, 9th inst., Stephen Heffornan, a fireman on the Central Railroad, saw a little child sitting on the rail, and paralyzed with fear as she saw the locomotive hastening toward her. Hurrying forward to the cow-catcher, he reached down, snatched her from the track and lifted her uninjured upon the engine.

—Colfax says: "We put into the slave's right hand the ballot to protect his manhood and his rights." No you don't. You do it only so that he may vote you into office. Down South you have disfranchised or beaten nearly to death every colored man who dared to exercise a choice by voting the Democratic ticket.

—The Chicago convention resolved that Congress should reduce the rate of interest on the public debt "as soon as it can be done"—say in a hundred years or so. Of course the reduction cannot be made so long as the present interest contracts exist, because the same august body denounced "all forms of repudiation as a national crime."

—The Boston Post has had telegraphed to it from Washington some shocking swearing, which Butler and other members of Congress are alleged to have indulged in within the last few days. Some of the words are truly fearful, and it is grievous to think that any Congressman should allow himself to get into such a frenzy as to use them.

—Since the close of the war, eleven hundred political preachers have been indicted for crimes, priacipally the seduction of silly and confiding females. "He who forgets God, by God shall he be forgotten," and a preacher who sells his voice to the Loyal League makes a contract with the devil, and will be punished and disgraced accordingly.

—Two men in Cadiz, Ohio, have bought a whole township, 23,040 acres, in Stanton county, Nebraska, and will cultivate it as a farm. Their residence will be put in the centre, with streets laid out and an avenue around the whole estate, lined with the Osage hedge. "This," says a correspondent "is only a sample of our Nebraska farming."

—Grant and Calfax are from adjoining Western States. The bondholders, the extreme Radicals and bloated monopolists of the East framed the platform to suit themselves, and then gave both the candidates to the West. The people of each section were ignored by the Convention, and their wishes disregarded. They will have something to say at the election.

—Senator Henderson, of Missouri, it is said, is about to marry a New York lady, Miss Foote, daughter of Elisha Foote, Esq., who is employed in the Patent Office at Washington. Mr. Henderson in a native of Virginia. He left that State when young for Missouri, and in 1856 was chosen as Presidential elector on the Buchanan ticket. His term of service expires March 4, 1869.

—The Nashville Banner says: "We heard from a responsible source yesterday, that a pocket book containing money and papers of Mr. Chumbly, killed during the late tornado in Williamson county, was picked up a day or two ago in Wilson county, between fifteen and eighteen miles from where the accident occurred. It was identified by notes bearing Mr. C.'s name."

—An Austrian condemned to six years hard labor, has made a curious time piece, mostly from refuse of his rations of rye bread. The clock indicates the hours, minutes, seconds, the days and months of the year. The hands are of wood and the figures and dial-plate of straw; the rest, even to the key, are made from the crumbs of bread. The only instrument employed by the convict was a small pocket knife.

—Stephen A. Douglas' remains will, on June 3d, the anniversary of his death, be transferred, with appropriate public ceremonies, to the tomb prepared for their reception at Chicago. The metallic case containing the body will be deposited in a white marble sarcophagus, standing in the centre of the chamber of the mausoleum, and visible through the grated doorway.—The funds of the Douglas Monument Association are exhausted, and a further sum of $50,000 will be necessary in order to carry out the original design of the memorial. In case this amount cannot be raised, the plan must be modified.

—Thad. Stevens has just had the pleasure of witnessing a spectacle which he was once anxious to behold. On the 2d of March, when impeachment was introduced to the House, he cried, (raising his skinny finger over his head and pointing toward the Senate,) "let me see the recreant who dares to tread back upon his steps and vote upon the other side. Point me out one who dares do it, and you show me one who dares to be regarded as infamous by posterity."

—It has been fully established that McRoberts who was hanged by a mob, near Waverly, Iowa, a few days ago, was innocent of the crime of horse-stealing with which he was charged. Two drunken youngsters had taken a pair of horses from a farmer's field, rode them a few miles, and turned them loose. McRoberts was arrested on suspicion and hanged. The owner of the horses found them at home when he returned from the scene of the tragedy.

—A very subtle and terribly fatal disease is now raging among the cattle in some portions of Illinois. Over one hundred head have fallen victims to it within the past few days. In usually kills in a few hours. No premonitory warnings are given, and although all the skill in possession of ordinary practitioners has been brought to bear upon it, it yields to no remedy or treatment, and is fatal in every instance. Its name and nature have not yet been determined.

—There were some fifteen or twenty negro delegates to the Chicago Convention, and they were objects of note on the floor Of course they were all enthusiastically for Grant, as they had been assured that he was in favor of establishing and perpetuating their supremacy in the South, and of giving the right of suffrage and all other political and social privileges to their race in the North. The dark complexioned delegates were a unit for Grant and Colfax.

HOUSEKEEPERS, ATTENTION!
A WASHING MACHINE
WORTH HAVING!

DOTY'S Clothes WASHER. The best ever invented
The longer THEY ARE Used the better THEY ARE LIKED.

They are coming into general use throughout the country.

Many who sell the UNIVERSAL WRINGER keep also the DOTY WASHING MACHINE, which, although but recently introduced, is as great a Labor and Clothes Saver as the Wringer, and is destined to win public favor and patronage everywhere.

It washes perfectly without wearing or rubbing the clothes at all.

☞Prices—Family Washer, $14. No. 1½ Wringer, $10.

These Machines are adopted by the American Agriculturist as Premiums, and endorsed by its Editors as the best in market.

HOME TESTIMONY.

Read the following testimonials from persons in Ebensburg who have used and learned to appreciate these valuable Machines:

Mr. G. Huntley—We have used one of Doty's Washing Machines, which we purchased from you several weeks since, and it gives entire satisfaction. We cheerfully recommend it to all housekeepers, and are free to say that we would not dispense with it for any consideration. It is a great saver of time, labor and clothes.
LINTON & SON, Mountain House.

I purchased one of Doty's Washers from Mr. G. Huntley and am delighted with it, and would recommend every housekeeper to get one. Mrs. A. M. PIPER.

Mr. G. Huntley—The Doty Washing Machine I purchased from you proves to be an article of real merit—the best I have ever seen. Considering the great relief it affords in the labor of washing and the saving of time, no family should be without it.
WM. M. JONES.

Mr. Geo. Huntley—I am delighted with the Doty Washer purchased from you.—The more I use it the better I like it. I would not be without it. It is a great saver of time and labor, and does not wear the clothes as much as the old tub and washboard. Mrs. A. BLAINE.

For sale by GEO. HUNTLEY.

THE UNIVERSAL
CLOTHES WRINGER,

Cannot be surpassed or equaled by any other Wringer for durability. Till the expiration of the patent for the "COG WHEEL REGULATOR," or "STOP-GEAR," no other Wringer is licensed under this Patent. It being universally conceded that Cogs are necessary to prevent the Rolls from being broken or torn loose, many attempts have been made to get a Cog-Wheel arrangement which shall equal the UNIVERSAL, and yet avoid the "Stop-Gear," but without success. For sale by GEO. HUNTLEY.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

THE OTHER MAC PEREGRINATES.—The FREEMAN sports two Macs—one is MacShane and the other isn't. MacShane generally does the traveling, but don't always describe his adventures. When he does he invariably says something to amuse his readers, and when he don't original wit and humor are at a discount in these columns. Practically speaking, MacShane is a representative man. True, he failed on two occasions in his efforts to represent his constituency in the Rump, but beneath the rump he is emphatically a true representative of the wooden country from which he hails when absent.—Go where he will he carries with him a sample of the staple product of Northern Cambria, and when right side up he is always "on it." Theoretically he may not otherwise represent the manufacturing interests of his section, for if a man sports a brick in his hat it does not always indicate that bricks are the principal articles of manufacture in the neighborhood from whence he came.

But it was not of MacShane we designed to discourse, though while we are speaking of him we may as well draw the line of distinction between the two Macs in question. MacShane is of course an Irish name. Mac signifies "son of," and Shane stands for "John"—transposed the words Anglicised are "John's son." What kind of a "son of" the other Mac is the reader can determined for himself. In the meantime permit us to say that the latter is the one of whose peregrinations we propose to speak on this occasion.

To escape for a brief period the cares and labors which make up a country printer's daily experiences, we determined on a hasty visit to the home of our childhood, and accordingly had our nether garment washed, starched and ironed, (Dory's Washer, of which Huntley keeps an assortment for sale, did its part admirably,) invited our better half to accompany us and gave her a CARTE BLANCHE for the two olive branches which vegetate under our roof. Reached the station here in due time, after bowing our back and perspiring our person generally in the effort to transport a huge basket filled with our garments, one dress claimed by our wife, and numberless clo—s and other articles of apparel designed for the use of the aforesaid olive branches. Train took us to Cresson, as is almost invariably does any person who gets on it with that object in view. At Cresson we had the good or bad fortune to connect with a passenger car attached to a freight train eastward bound. Got aboard and the train moved off about 9 o'clock. Had not been long a BOARD when we had to PLANK down our tickets. Conductor punched holes in them and handed them back. Train went on as much as ten feet without stopping, the driving wheel at no time making less than one revolution before ceasing to revolute. Passengers got on and off at their pleasure, but no one seeming to be in a hurry, we all rode when the train moved. Had plenty of time to make our wills and otherwise prepare ourselves for a longer journey, if so be it we were on the train to eternity. Didn't apprehend anything of that kind, however, as a man would have had abundance of time, if he fell behind one of the wheels, to crawl out before the next one reached him. Delays are said to be dangerous, but the idiom does not always hold good on a rail road train. Approached the Tunnel, three miles from Cresson, at 11 o'clock, or thereabouts.—Had made excellent time, and plenty of it, but it was principally made in standing still, waiting on coming trains and Lord knows how many other things. Trains passed, several of them—none on the track our train occupied, however, as we had the right of WAY, although it was a very slow WAY of getting over ground. Cut loose from freight cars and went into the Tunnel with our hand on our pocket book—came out with the pocket book in our hand. Thundered down the mountain as if determined to make up for lost time, and came to a halt at Altoona in time for dinner. Took our basket on our arm—wife did the same for the baby—and made a straight garment appendage for the residence of our whole souled friend and correspondent, "T. I. M." Knew that we could share his hospitality and his "vittles" without asking the privilege, and found he had as usual an abundance of both prepared against our coming. Ate, drank and made merry—left our wife and his wife entertaining each other on the subject of children teething, or some kindred topic, and sallied forth in quest of other scenes and other friends. Brought up at the VINDICATOR office and found the proprietors with their sleeves off and their coats rolled up, while "Sku Bal" was busily engaged with the point of his pen in puncturing the petty political puppets who failed so ingloriously for themselves and gloriously for the people and the country in convicting A. Johnson of a breach (or BREECHES) of the eleventh commandment. And here let us remark that there is little fear of Andy being found guilty of having broken either of the other ten commandments, as the impeachers themselves have ere this made "smithereens" of the entire decalogue, and left nothing for A. J. to break.

Found no congenial spirits (and don't indulge in any other) at leisure to be bored by our presence, and hence made our visit brief at both ends. Next circumambulated round to the TRIBUNE office. Found Makerum and another Dern clever fellow still the presiding geniuses of the establishment, while Makeimry, Burchy, Hachett, and others, FORMED and COMPOSED the chaste assemblage of types who PRESSED around to congratulate us on our good clothes, good looks and "fat take" in the flesh line. Hunky boys, all of them, but poor subjects for a soap boiling establishment. All of them but one fat as a match, and he is "(G)LEANER" than all the rest put together. Made our escape as soon as possible, but tarried on the corner to hold converse with our diminutive friend, H. C. D. Were soon startled by a voice from a POTTER (some other vessel) over the way calling us by name, and then beckoning us across. Understood that we were wanted and went over.—Were met with a cordial (not Godfrey's Cordial) greeting and a benign (seven by nine) smile, invited in and for a time startled by the mysterious movements of our host. Began to understand finally what it all meant and—came out at the conclusion of the ordeal with a box of prime cigars under our arm.

The rest of our adventures during the remaining hour or two spent in the "Mountain City," ended for the most part in smoke. Took the evening train for and the train took us to Hollidaysburg. Saw a blind man in the car, but feel confident that the blind man didn't see us. He was under the leadership of a young lad who had evidently seen enough for both of them. Little chap who could see vended songs for the benefit of the big chap who couldn't, and everybody bought. We staked ten cents on a "blind," and although the blind man didn't "see it," his agent raked in the stamp and handed over the ballad. Reached Hollidaysburg and broke for the maternal roof. Got under it in the usual way without damage, met the gushish greetings gladly, expressed our sentiments eloquently, and made ourself at home generally. Bobbed round to see the corpulent Register in Bankruptcy, and received from him a moderate supply of "Spinners." Next called on our typographical tutor, the editor of the STANDARD, and found him the occupant of the largest, best lighted, best ventilated, and altogether the most perfect "print shop" that we ever visited. Took a survey of the premises and the numberless fonts of beautiful types with which the establishment is supplied, and ceased to wonder that such a neat paper and such neat job work of all kind should be executed by so competent a workman as our old boss. Descended the stairs, entered the portals beneath, and stood in the presence of our big hearted, big bodied and big fisted friend, Jim Cramer, who does a thriving business in dealing out fresh groceries and provisions to the hungry mortals in that vicinity who know where the most and the best can be obtained for the least money, and who also know where to bestow their custom upon one of the most worthy and accommodating gentlemen between sunrise and sunset. Allah!

Made it a point to visit many other talented BU(E)GERS, not excepting our Teutonic musical friend, C. O. Burg, (no relation to coburg cloth,) J. M. Pircher, the well-known clothier, who understands what to buy and how to buy it, and is too honest a man to ask more than a reasonable profit on his goods when he sells them, and that other "perfect brick" (make), T. H.—Met with generous greetings worthy of bestowal on a better man, and felt that our lines had indeed been cast in pleasant places, with no defedt in the casting.

Spent the evening and a few other things most pleasantly at the festival then being held in the large and splendid school rooms of St. Mary's Academy for boys. An immense throng of fair women and stalwart men crowded the commodious halls, and everything went "merry as a marriage bell." Invested ten cents in the name of the three year old juvenile who calls us "Papie." The stamp drew a large and luscious sponge cake bearing some very tasty hieroglyphics done up in white sugar. Rejoiced at the turn events had taken, or rather at the turn the diminutive keg had taken on its axis, and was led home uncomplainingly by the woman who has promised to take care of us for the balance of our days. Felt satisfied that the festival was an excellent institution, that the ladies and gents who were running the machine did it most agreeably and in aid of a noble cause, and that those who partook of the pleasures and refreshments so abundantly furnished, and so palatably spiced with excellent music from St. Mary's brass band, thereby contributed their mite in liquidating the debt which has necessarily accrued in the erection of such substantial, commodious and magnificent school buildings as those which have been reared through the untiring energy and Christian zeal of the faithful, devoted, beloved and most amiable pastor of St. Mary's congregation, Hollidaysburg.

Sunday was got over without going fishing, if we except that kind of fishing which our Saviour commended to St. Peter, and in that we bore out our patronym by taking the part of the fish. Monday morning we left our family to complete the visiting contract, and turned our steps homeward. On reaching Altoona found we had time enough to make a pop visit to that prince of insurance and shipping agents—one the biggest little men who vegetate in this or any other bailiwick—Bob Kerr. We shall not attempt to describe the magnificent rooms occupied by our friend Bob, but all that money, taste and enterprise could make them they are, while the proprietor himself is a most genial gentleman and experienced business man, and represents all the leading and best insurance companies in the country. Mr. Kerr is of course prospering, as every man possessed of such untiring energy and pleasing address deserves to prosper.

We cannot nor should not close this prolix sketch without alluding to one or two other important business houses in the embryo city.—The first and we believe the only strictly wholesale business establishment founded in Altoona is that of Mr. John J. Potter, Virginia street, near Annie. Mr. Potter deals extensively in Tobacco and Cigars, Wood and Willow Ware, Boots, Shoes, Notions, and many other articles in which merchants generally deal. He says that he can sell as cheap as his Eastern brethren, and that purchasers can save the freight between the two points by buying from him.—We know John's word to be as good as old wheat, his stock to be fresh and complete, and to our mercantile friends everywhere we say give him a trial and he will treat you honorably and liberally.

The mammoth establishment of the Altoona Warehouse Company, we were pleased to learn, is attracting the attention of our Northern Cambria friends. A Company with such facilities for doing business, and such a commendable disposition to buy and sell on fair and just terms, cannot be long in winning its way to a liberal and appreciative public patronage.

And now let us say that we concluded our trip without further adventure worth mentioning, and are again at home, fully prepared to execute all kind of job work or furnish the FREEMAN to new subscribers at the low price of two dollars per year—principally cash.

SOMETHING extraordinary in the show line is to make its appearance in Ebensburg on Thursday, June 4th. The establishment referred to is entitled "The Great American Exposition of Circus and Trained Animals," undoubtedly the largest and most perfectly equipped troupe of any that has started out this season. The company hails from Philadelphia, under the management of Messrs. Hemmings, Cooper and Whitby, and is everywhere spoken of in terms of highest eulogy. By advertisement and superb posters displayed around town, we learn that on the morning of the day of exhibition the company will make their grand entrance in full dress procession, parading the principal streets, accompanied with music, etc. The magnificent pageant displays the stock and material of the great show, attracting thousands from the adjoining towns, and for its novelty and excellence, drawing immense crowds to witness the daring splendors of ths circus, and the performance of the finest menagerie of trained animals ever exhibited on this continent.

THE COMING FAIR.—Little has been said of late in regard to the Fair in aid of the new Catholic church edifice in this place, but the ladies connected with the congregation have been none the less busy in making ample preparations for the proposed festival, and will open it out in "full feather" at the Town Hall, on Monday evening next. Of course it is hoped that everybody, strangers as well as citizens, will encourage by their presence and aid by their means this effort to secure material aid on behalf of so worthy and necessary an object. Liberal provision has been made to entertain visitors in a pleasant and agreeable manner, and an abundance of good things will be served up to all who wish to indulge at any time throughout the continuance of the Fair. A large number of valuable and beautiful articles will be offered for competition, and an opportunity will be afforded everybody to secure a handsome and desirable prize at a very small outlay. We earnestly trust that a spirit of liberality and commendable zeal will actuate all classes in patronizing this agreeable mode of aiding an excellent project.

ARRESTED ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.—Thos. Mullaly, a resident of Washington township, was arrested on Thursday last and brought to the jail in this place, charged, on oath of his brother-in-law, with having caused the death of his wife in December, 1865. It appears that Mrs. Mullaly was burned to death by carbon oil at the time stated, but the misfortune was always supposed to have been the result of accident, and the prosecution at this late day excites much curiosity and comment in the neighborhood in which the sad tragedy occurred. The case will come before our Court for trial next week, and it will then be seen whether there is anything in the evidence to convict the prisoner of so terrible a crime as the one charged in the indictment.

A NEW IDEA.—One of our jokers the other day, on reading the deaths in a down eastern paper, and seeing the ages of many on the list to be eighty and upward, said he couldn't see how people afforded to live to such a great age—he wasn't but thirty, and hadn't enough money to hold out much louger these hard times. This individual should buy what he needs at R. R. Davis' store. A little money goes a long way at that establishment.

EDITORIALITIES, LOCAL AND GENERAL.—The "Acrostic" of Leopold Mayer has been received too late for insertion this week.

The ladies of Johnstown will decorate with flowers the graves of the soldier dead in that place, on Saturday next. Beautiful tribute.

"Many Democrats" solicit a meeting of the Democracy of Allegheny township and Loretto borough, at the Mountain House, Loretto, at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening next, for the purpose of organizing a "White Man's Club." A full turn-out is desirable.

There was forty gallons of the Metropolitan Oil sold in this place last week by M. L. Oatman. Pretty good to begin with. The Oil does not appear to be hard to introduce. There is nothing to prevent it from selling faster than any Oil in the market. It is the cheapest Oil used.

The dead body of a raftman named Bowers, who resided in the vicinity of New Washington, Clearfield county, was taken through our town last week, with a view to its interment at home. The deceased is said to have expired on board one of the rafts, near Marietta, while suffering from an attack of fits, to which he was subject.

Mr. Evelyn Evans will give one of his admirable readings at the Court House, in this place, on Tuesday evening next. His budget consists of some of the finest selections from the most popular authors, and the admirable manner in which Mr. Evans renders these choice gems is pleasing, interesting and instructive. By all means let him have a befitting welcome.

A match game of base ball—the first of the season for this section—came off on the "Mountaineer" grounds on Tuesday of last week.—The contesting parties were picked nines from the East and West Wards. The game resulted in favor of the East Ward by a score of 26 to 34. On Monday of this week, the return game was played, resulting in favor of the West Ward by a score of 30 to 36. We understand the home-and-home game will be played to-morrow (Friday) afternoon.

C. W. Easly, of the Altoona VINDICATOR, presented his intelligent phiz to the admiring gaze of his many friends in this locality on Thursday last, but withdrew it ere we had time to say much more than "How d'ye do?" Always glad to see Cas., but can scarcely reconcile ourself to the absence from our columns of his readable letters over the signature of "Sku Bal." He is making the VINDICATOR hump, however, and we hope the VINDICATOR will in return make a hump in his pocket book.

After a few months' absence from our table, the TEACHERS' ADVOCATE has again put in an appearance, having just been rejuvenated under the editorial management of our talented young townsman, Mr. Geo. W. Cope. It now emanates from the printing establishment of Messrs. McCrum & Dern, Altoona, and is as neat in appearance as it is readable in contents. We trust the new editor will find the "posish" a pleasant one, and that the ADVOCATE will never fail for want of support from the educational fraternity.

Jacob Grister, while employed in adjusting a strap extending from a grindstone to a drum on a shaft in a steam planing mill at Ludwick, a couple of weeks since, became entangled in the strap, which encircled his legs, breaking them below the knee, and at each revolution of the shaft his head came in contact with the joist above and frame below. His head was horribly mangled, scattering the brains and skull over the room in every direction. He leaves a wife and children living in Hempfield township, Westmoreland county.

If a man is to be judged by the company he keeps, we see no good reason why a company may not be judged by the man it keeps, and when a traveling exhibition like the mammoth combination which is to exhibit here on the 4th June next keeps in advance such a gentlemanly agent as the veteran Couldock, it is fair to presume, even if we had no other criterion to judge by, that the coming Circus and Menagerie is an entertainment of the most elaborate and gratifying character. Mr Couldock is a first class business agent and a most agreeable gentleman, and we feel sure that he is the forerunner of a first-class exhibition.

BIG THING.—It's a ponderous article to be a newspaper man. A fellow in any other profession may be smarter and better, but he can never hope to attain so much notoriety as "ye printer man." A chap that publishes a newspaper can't poke his nose out of his own neighborhood, or at least into one where another journal is printed. We tried it on not long since and afforded a subject for no less than three newspaper paragraphs. The Hollidaysburg STANDARD, among other things, declared that we "looked as fine as silk." Perhaps we do, but like a sow's ear, we wouldn't serve to make a purse of. "Gleaner," the Altoona correspondent of the same paper, dubs us a notable, talks about our good clothes and abundance of flesh, thinks the mountain air supplied us with both, and intimates that he has a good joke he intends to get off at our expense. What we are NOT-ABLE to do he don't inform us, but we know what we can do, Jo—"Gleaner." If the joke is not one of your dry old ones, we can laugh with a loud guffaw, and gain more flesh thereby than we ever obtained through the medium of "mountain air," or "mountain dew" either. Our "good clothes" might suffer in the meantime, however. All this from one paper, but as if that was not enough, along comes the Altoona VINDICATOR with a CAMPBELL's load of criticism which we are expected to bear just as—EASLY. It goes the whole hog except the bristles, and to the color of them it flies objections. Well, we can't help it, but console ourself with the thought that our wife lays the "sweet unction to her soul" that we have the nicest HAIR that vegetates on any cranium in this "neck of timber"—and we think we have the nicest HER that ever was given to man to comfort him. The feeling is reciprocal—she likes our HAIR and we like our HER—and nobody else cares a darn about the whole subject in dispute. So let "cry up" be the word.

GOING "WEST."—Last week we printed bills for the sale of John G. Wherley's personal property, to take place Saturday next—John having purchased a farm in Cambria county and made arrangements to take possession thereof the 1st of June. John is a good hearted fellow, a sound Democrat and no doubt will make an excellent farmer, having been raised to the business in the "old country." We wish him abundant crops, a ready market and good health in his new home.—Huntingdon Monitor.

GARDENING.—The disagreeable weather of the past month or two has deterred many from putting in seed, but doubtless all will pitch in now and endeavor to make up for lost time. That no further delay may be made in the matter we suggest that the necessary implements, seeds, and all other articles required for gardening, may be had at the extensive house-furnishing establishment of Geo. Huntley, who also has for sale a fine lot of large and healthy tomato plants, just fresh from the hot beds.

NOT to pile up the agony of eloquence too strongly, we state with great confidence that ladies attired in new styles of spring and summer dress goods bought at the rehowned establishment of V. S. Barker, on High street, will find the effect so rejuvenating that all the cares incident to domestic life will be as blithesome as kissing the dewdrops from the roses of beauty that bloom in perennial fragrance in the Elysian fields of ecstatic love!

OLD GRIMES is dead, that good old soul!
We ne'er shall see him more;
He used to wear an old blue coat,
That buttoned down before.
Yes, Old Grimes is dead, but we'll bet a V if he was living that he would go to Spence's Photograph Establishment and have taken a few beautiful photographs to distribute among his friends. Reader, go thou and do likewise.

CLEARLY SO.—It is clearly so that M. L. Oatman is selling Groceries at prices to suit all who call on him to buy. Consumers of coffee, sugar, tea, molasses, rice, cheese, tobacco and cigars, or anything else in the grocery line, will undoubtedly save money by purchasing at M. L. Oatman's, three doors east of Crawford's hotel.

Can't be beat,
I'll bet a treat.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

ALTOONA, May 25, 1868.

FRIEND MAC—A very sad and distressing case of suicide occurred in this place on Thursday last. A gentleman named Wahl, residing in Kittanning, Armstrong county, came to this city a short time since on a visit to two of his sons residing here. It appears that Mr. W had the misfortune, some six or eight months ago, to lose his wife by death, and ever since that time he has been laboring under mental depression of mind, frequently remarking that he was tired of living and wished to join his wife. In this frame of mind, no doubt, he visited one of our drug stores and bought a quantity of arsenic, with which he returned to his hotel, and complaining to the girls of the house that he he was unwell and wished to take a dose of salts, he with the assistance of the girls mixed the poison in a tumbler and swallowed the dose. He then quietly retired to his bedroom, and summoning one of the girls requested her to inform his sons that he wished to see them. As soon as they reached his bedside he informed them that he had taken poison, and would ere long die and rejoin his wife. The feellings of the young men may be better imagined than described. Suffice it to say that every means were employed, every antidote administered, to relieve the wretched man, but without effect.

Considerable excitement prevailed on Wednesday evening at the Catholic Fair, it being the evening on which the beautiful office chair was to be awarded to the most popular Foreman connected with the Company's works. I think the ballot box must have been "stuffed," for upon counting its contents there were found to have been over seven thousand votes in it—Mr Jos Watson, having received the highest number of ballots, was declared the most popular Foreman, and consequently "took the chair." It is probably the most costly one in the State, having brought the fabulous sum of nearly $1400. A few evenings after a gold headed cane was awarded to the most amiable young man. The votes decided that our corpulent friend, Wm. Cunningham, was the chap.

The Baptist Fair closed on Saturday, and proved quite a success. Several valuable articles were awarded by ballot, the J. S. of A. receiving the splendid sofa chair, Rev. Sembower the fine wreath and frame, Rev. Mrs. Baker and Rev. Mrs. Wallace other valuable articles, and last but by no means least, the grand and costly regalia was awarded to Mr. Sam'l Ivories.

I see by the Altoona TRIBUNE that those political scavengers to whom I alluded in a previous letter have succeeded in securing the removal of the polls from the Woods House to a stable belonging to one of the black and tan fraternity. You will remember that I expressed the hope that a certain individual who holds a high position in Court would not stultify himself by countenancing such an outrageous proceeding. But we were mistaken in the man, and I assure you it will be remembered, but not to his credit, for all time to come. That half way shilly shally wooly Radical independent neutral paper, the TRIBUNE, says that the petition praying for the removal of the polls was gotten up and signed irrespective of party. It does not become such respectable editors as those of the TRIBUNE to endeavor to deceive the people by such twaddle. The truth is a few of those black and tan scavengers, those God and morality patriots, conceived the idea that they could play a sharp game by having the polls removed from Col. Woods' hotel (a Democratic house) to a stable now occupied by mules, horses, asses and Radicals. They approached a few Democrats, and with the only argument they have, deception, informed them that Col. Woods desired the removal of the polls, which was utterly false, and by this disgraceful subterfuge procured the signing of this petition irrespective of party. Yours, T. I. M.

CARROLLTOWN, PA., May 25, 1868.

DEAR FREEMAN:—Your "Iago" having left the State, and consequently subjected you to the loss of the services of a correspondent here, we take the liberty of addressing you with the notion in view of keeping you posted as to matters and things hereaways.

So "Andy," Justice, and Right have triumphed, and the disgrace and ruin sought to be brought upon the country by the graceless scoundrels who are permitted to go unwhipped of the Justice that should long since have been measured out to them at so much a foot—hemp—are left to enjoy the infamous reputations they so richly merit and are to leave to all posterity as a monument of the extreme to which sordid and degraded motives can carry conscienceless intelligence and accidental influence. Well, indeed, may we rejoice; and the good citizens of this place took advantage of the occasion to celebrate the renewed hope that is given us for the future of our country by a bonfire, music, and general rejoicing, on Monday evening last. J. C. Easly was called upon and made a few brief remarks; after which, the large crowd adjourned to a hall and passed the evening in social intercourse and mutual congratulations on the good news of the acquittal of the President. And finally, the party adjourned with three cheers for the success of the Democratic party.

On Thursday evening, a very pleasant affair took place here, which, though local in character, I cannot but crave your indulgence while I speak of it. It had been rumored through his congregation that Rev. Giles Christoph, Prior and Pastor here, was about to take his departure for another scene of labor, and to testify the esteem in which the Rev. gentleman was held, it was resolved by the De Lemke Association to present him with a snuff-box. Accordingly, a very handsome silver snuff box, lined with gold, was procured in New York city, and properly inscribed with the following: "To Rev. Giles Christoph. A token of esteem from the De Lemke Association. Carrolltown, Pennsylvania." And on Ascension Day, the 21st instant, evening, the Association known as above, accompanied by the brass band, which is part and parcel of it, marched to the Monastery in strict silence, in order to make the surprise as great as possible. Once arrived at the main door, the band struck up a National air, and immediately at its conclusion were invited into the spacious reception room of the Monastery, where Henry Scanlon, Esq., in a brief and eloquent speech, presented the snuff-box on behalf of the Association to the Rev. gentleman. The Prior responded in language that evinced the emotions of the heart and appealed to the finer feelings of all present. J. C. Easly then replied to the remarks of the Rev. Prior, after which several pleasant hours of social intercourse were spent, during which a vocal band, in addition to the brass band, assisted in speeding the "starry hours."

The De Lemke Association feel under great obligations to and take this method of thanking the Rev. Prior, Rev. Father Decker and other reverend gentlemen who took so much trouble to make the episode a pleasant one.

Want of time forbids me from writing more, but I shall refer to this subject, as a matter of interest to many of your readers, at some future time. Yours, &c., U. NITED.

NATURE AND ART.—To view the beauties of nature in all their pleasing perfection you should rise early in the morning and take a stroll on the outskirts of our town, but to behold the beauties of art you can get up at any time and repair to the clock, watch, jewelry and notion establishment of C. I. Roberts, where anything from a steel pen to a sewing machine can be bought, and bought at the lowest price for cash.

NOW YOU SEE IT.—It has been a difficult matter heretofore to realize that Spring had really paid its annual visit to these bleak mountain tops, but the past few days have settled the question in the affirmative, and no one need now hesitate about pitching in and buying to his or her heart's content of the splendid Spring goods so invitingly displayed at the cheap store of H. A. Shoemaker & Co., High street, Ebensburg.

MELTING.—To plunge a young lady six fathoms deep in happiness, give her two canary birds, a half dozen moonbeams, fifteen yards of silk, an ice cream, some rosebuds, a squeeze of the hand, and the promise of a new bonnet. We would suggest that the silk, as well as all other kinds of superb dress goods, can be purchased very cheap at Thompson's low-priced store, on High street.

MARRIED.

NEADS—RAGER.—At the Lutheran Parsonage, Wilmore, on the 21st inst., by Rev. A. R. Height, Mr. Solomon Nead, of Croyle tp., and Miss Elizabeth Caroline Rager, of Jackson township, Cambria county.

DIED.

BRAMWELL.—In Kansas City, Mo., on April 17th, Dr. Henry V. Bramwell, aged 64 years. The deceased was at one time a practising physician in Hollidaysburg, and afterwards resided in Johnstown. He was well known througout this and adjoining counties as a skillful physician and an honorable, upright man.

TODD.—At East Freedom, Blair county, on the 17th inst., of pneumonia, Robert Todd, Esq., aged about 60 years.

GOOD, BETTER, BEST.—The best and cheapest Tobacco and Cigars in town are at M. L. Oatman, Go and see.

BACK TO FIRST PRINCIPLES

BOOTS AND SHOES

OF MY OWN MANUFACTURE.

WHAT I MAKE I CAN WARRANT!

After an experience of more than a year in the sale of Eastern made work, during which time I have expended more than the profits in repairing rips and tares, I have determined to come back to first principles and henceforth confine myself to the manufacture of BOOTS and SHOES for Men, Youths, Ladies and Misses, and am now better prepared than ever to give entire satisfaction in my business.

I have at present in my employ a competent corps of workmen, and can say without fear of contradiction that I can turn out as neat and substantial Boots and Shoes at as MODERATE PRICES as can be made anywhere in the State. I am having Boots made of the finest French Calfskin, and within the past month or two have had orders pouring in upon me from all quarters for this kind of work. The material in these Boots is the best to be found in the market, and the workmanship, both in neatness and strength, cannot be excelled at any other establishment in the country.

MY TRAIN ALWAYS ON TIME!

All work will be ready for delivery at the time promised. Weddings, visits and other interesting or important occurrences need not be postponed through any failure on my part to come to time.

Good work and moderate prices is my motto, and one trial will convince any person that the motto is well chosen.

☞Repairing of Boots and Shoes attended to promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Thankful for past favors I feel confident that my work and prices will commend me to a continuance and increase of the same.

CAUTION.—Notice is hereby given that I am the sole owner of the RIGHT to manufacture and sell "BENTLEY'S NON-EXPLOSIVE METROPOLITAN OIL" in Cambria county, for which I have an assignment of Letters Patent, and that any person or persons manufacturing or selling it, or any imitation of it, by whatever name it may be known, without first obtaining authority from me, will be proceeded against by due course of law, and subjected to such penalties and fines as are imposed by law.

The following named persons have purchased rights from me, and are authorized to manufacture and sell the Metropolitan Oil: Christian Reich, for Summitville borough and Washington township; John Buck, for Carrolltown borough and Carroll, Chest and Susquehanna townships. Any other parties making or selling the Oil, or any imitation thereof, without producing written authority from me, are infringing upon my right, and they and those purchasing from them will be dealt with according to law.

Grand Tour of the Republic!

It is impossible through the means of an ordinary advertisement to give an idea either of the magnitude or magnificence of the Great Exposition of 1868. Other papers have been partially devoted to that purpose, and explanatory sheets on a variety of the most interesting subjects, have been sent in advance.

The company has been two entire years in perfecting its organization—Circus and Trained Animals.

Although the names of many of the principal artists connected with the institution will be found below, the limited space of a newspaper column can give no adequate idea of their merit or the great diversity of amusements embraced in the Grand Exposition. Many are so well established in reputation on this continent as not to need special attention. Others, again, present more novelty.

The only means of giving the public a full idea of the exhibition, is to invite attention to the Grand Procession on the great fete day. The procession is intended to display the unparaleled

The entire stock of the Circus, including the valuable animals intended for the manege, the Wild Beasts, with their keepers, the living tableau group riding a group of ladies and the performing Horse, the little Elephant "Titania," the troupes of ponies with juvenile riders, Shetlands with monkey riders, one of the small

To Cure a Smoky Chimney.

A correspondent who lives in New Hampshire, states that in those parts resides a man named Joe—a fellow noted or the tough lies he can tell, and as a sample relates the following:

Joe called at Holton's one day and found him almost choked with smoke, when he suggested:

You don't know as much about managing smoky chimneys as I do, squire, or you'd cure 'em."

"Ah," said Holton, with interest, "did you ever see a smoky chimney cured?"

"See a smoky chimney cured?" said old Joe. "I think I have! I had the worst one in Seaboard county once, and I cured it a little too much."

"How was that?" asked Holton.

"Why, you see," said Joe, "you see, I built a little house out yonder at Wolf Hollow, ten or twelve years ago; Jim Bush, the fellow that built the chimney, kept blind drunk three quarters of the time, and crazy drunk the rest. I told him that he would have something wrong, but he stuck to it, and finished the house. Well, we moved in, and built a fire the next morning to boil the tea-kettle. All the smoke came through the room and went out of the windows; not a bit went up the flues. We tried it for two or three days, and it grew worse and worse. By-and-by it began to rain, and the rain began to come down the chimney. It put out the fire in a minute, and directly it came down by the pail full. We had to get the baby off the floor as soon as we could, or it would have been drowned. In fifteen minutes the water stood knee deep on the floor. Then I went and took a look. It didn't rain half so hard outside, and I pretty soon saw what was the matter. The drunken cuss had put the chimney wrong end up, and it drawed downwards; it gathered all the rain within a hundred yards, and poured it down by buckets full."

"Well, that was unfortunate," remarked Holton. "But what did you do with the house? Surely you never cured that chimney!"

"But I did, though," answered old Joe.

"How?" asked Holton.

"Turned the other end up," said the incorrigible, "and then you ought to have seen it draw. That was the way I cured it too much."

"Drew too much?" asked Holton.

"Well, Squire, you may judge for yourself," said old Joe. "Pretty soon after we got the chimney down and the other end up, I missed one of the chairs out of the room, and directly I see another of 'em shooting towards the fireplace. Next the table went, and then I saw the backlog going up. Then I grabbed the old woman under on one arm and the baby under t'other, an I started; but just as I reached the door I see the cat going across the floor backwards, holding on with her claws to the carpet, and yelling awfully. But it warn't no use. I just seen her going over the top of the chimney, and that was the last."

"Well, what did you do then?" asked Holton. "Of course you couldn't live in such a house."

"Couldn't I, though?" said Joe; "but I did. I put a poultice on the jam of the fireplace, and that drawed t'other way, so we had no more trouble."

A VISION.—While upon our pillow sleeping, awful sights in fancy creeping, skeletons of dry bones weeping, half a million, may be more; each one stood erect and crying, vengeance for his fate in dying, on the battle-field while trying to control as heretofore. Each one swearing he was willing to commence the work of spilling blood of Radicals and filling every house with human gore. Ghostly horde with fiendish feeling, rebel dead, but Devils dealing death to Radicals for stealing cotton, spoons and something more. As I gazed in perfect wonder, suddenly a voice like thunder, rent the air for blood and plunder on the head of every man, who on loyalty is doting and on plunder has been floating, where the niggers do the voting, there it is, we formed the clan. Clan of Klu Klux first a meagre band of rebels who were eager to dispatch each Loyal Leaguers found within the Southern States. Now a mighty host preparing bloody deeds of death and daring, for the loyal who are sharing honors for their hellish hates. In each town and hamlet treading, death and desolation spreading, scourge that Union men are dreading, ghostly wailing of the slain. Fire and smoke and vapor boiling, for the flesh of those who're toiling for the Union, and are spoiling with the nigger on the brain. We are devils and rebelling, now on earth, we have our dwelling, and they set up such a yelling, an unearthly hellish scream; when our bed commenced a shaking, and the noise, these devils making made us tremble and awaking, found it but a frightful dream.
